Support For Those Diagnosed with Cancer and Their Caregivers

Offered in conjunction with The Middleton Center of Bryn Mawr Presbyterian Church meeting the third Tuesday of each month

Tuesday, February 16, at 7:00 pm at Converse House Parlor
Bryn Mawr Presyterian Church

Facilitated by Barbara Foxman, a licensed social worker who is living with cancer, and Judith Sullivan, who is an Episcopal priest and a caregiver to a loved one living with cancer. One of the most difficult things a person can hear for themselves or a loved one is, “You have cancer.” The diagnosis is an entry into a foreign land, and suddenly one is faced with a new language and a new culture. The journey through this confusing and frightening new landscape is made easier by confidence in the skills of one’s medical team, but more is often needed. This monthly group is designed to provide peer support and information. For more information, please contact the Rev. Judith Sullivan at Judith@theredeemer.org or 610-525-2486, ext. 13.
